It has long been known that, in the presence of a strong magnetic field, the electron spin is aligned with the field. This is the basis of the spin Hall effect of light, which is the subject of this paper. The spin Hall effect of light is a phenomenon in which the spin of the light is converted into a transverse shift of the beam. This is a purely quantum effect, and it is the subject of this paper.

It is not only our mental life that is affected by the process of aging. The body itself undergoes changes that are not always apparent to the individual. The body's ability to repair itself is diminished, and the body's ability to fight off disease is weakened. The body's ability to absorb nutrients is also diminished, and the body's ability to regulate its temperature is weakened. These changes are all part of the aging process, and they are all part of the body's natural decline.

OFWs warned against travelling with pirated CDs

By James Bay

THE PHILIPPINE CUSTOMS AND BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION (CBFI) has issued a warning to Overseas Filipino Workers (OFWs) against travelling with pirated compact discs (CDs). The agency said that carrying pirated CDs is a violation of the Copyright Act of 1988 and can result in a fine of up to P100,000 or imprisonment for up to five years.

The CBFI is a branch of the Philippine Customs Service and is responsible for enforcing customs laws and regulations.

The agency said that it has received reports from OFWs that they are being stopped at airports and asked to pay a bribe to avoid inspection. The agency said that this is a common tactic used by corrupt officials to extort money from OFWs.

The agency is now conducting an investigation into the matter and has issued a warning to OFWs to stop carrying pirated CDs. The agency said that it will continue to monitor the situation and will take action against anyone who is caught carrying pirated CDs.

The agency said that it will also be conducting a campaign to educate OFWs about the dangers of carrying pirated CDs.

FAA warned about
al-Qaida threat in 1998

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration warned in 1998 that al-Qaida was planning to hijack a commercial airplane and crash it into the World Trade Center, according to a report released by the agency on Tuesday.

The report, which was obtained by the Associated Press, says that the FAA received a tip from a source in 1998 that al-Qaida was planning to hijack a commercial airplane and crash it into the World Trade Center. The FAA at the time was not aware of the threat and did not take any action.

The report also says that the FAA received another tip in 1998 that al-Qaida was planning to hijack a commercial airplane and crash it into the World Trade Center. The FAA at the time was not aware of the threat and did not take any action.

Bishops refused to be stampeded

POLITICAL
TODAY

By Tim
Lynch

THE BISHOPS' REFUSAL TO be stampeded by the media and the public into a hasty decision to allow the sale of the Church of Ireland's property is a welcome sign of the Church's independence and its commitment to the public good.

The Church of Ireland's property is a valuable asset and its sale should be a matter of public concern. The Church's decision to sell the property should be based on the public good and not on the interests of the Church's members.

Characteristics of traditional socialists

Traditional socialists are characterized by their belief in the need for a strong, centralized government to control the economy and society. They believe that the state should own and control the means of production and distribution of goods and services. They also believe that the state should provide for the basic needs of all citizens, including education, healthcare, and housing.

Traditional socialists are also characterized by their belief in the importance of social justice and equality. They believe that the state should ensure that all citizens have access to the same opportunities and resources, regardless of their social class or background.

Finally, traditional socialists are often characterized by their belief in the need for a strong, unified community. They believe that the state should promote a sense of unity and solidarity among all citizens, and that it should work to eliminate any divisions or conflicts that may exist within society.

Organizing for the future

As we look towards the future, it is clear that we need to organize ourselves in a way that allows us to effectively address the challenges we face. This requires a combination of individual effort and collective action. We need to work together to create a vision of the future and to develop the strategies and resources needed to achieve it.

One of the key challenges we face is the need to address the growing gap between the rich and the poor. This requires a combination of economic reforms and social programs that can help to reduce inequality and provide for the basic needs of all citizens.

Another key challenge is the need to address the environmental crisis. We need to take action to reduce our carbon footprint and to protect the natural resources that we rely on for our survival.

Finally, we need to address the challenges posed by globalization and technological change. We need to ensure that all citizens have access to the opportunities and resources that these changes can provide, and that we are able to adapt to the new realities of the global economy.

also said it was time for the country to move forward, warning "excessive politicking" had caused divisions in the country and worsened the drift toward poverty. The council did not specify how the search for truth should be conducted. The prelates said it was up to the people to decide this.

The election watchdog of the 119-member CBCP said in its statement that it was dismayed by the scuttling of the impeachment complaints on technicalities.

"The people's right to know the truth is the essence of any rule of law," the PPCRV said.

Uncovering the truth should actually be to the President's liking considering her dwindling popularity and credibility, it said.

"It is therefore in the best interest of any government official to clarify any allegation in order to regain this trust, the PPCRV said."

CBCP faction

A Church insider said the permanent council's statement "more or less" reflected key suggestions of a militant faction of the CBCP that gathered in Manila before the prelates' policy-making group sat down for four hours on Tuesday to consider the implications of the killing of the impeachment complaints in Congress.

The faction, assembled by a former top CBCP official, was pushing for Ms Arroyo's greater accountability while urging politicians to address the serious problem of poverty, the source said.

Bishop Socrates Villegas of Bataan, a close associate of Cardinal Sin, also said yesterday that Ms Arroyo must be held accountable for the nation's political turmoil.

Villegas said forgiveness should not be the end to Ms Arroyo's July apology for phoning an election official during the 2004 elections, a move she had described as a "lapse in judgment." However, she denied manipulating the vote.

Speaking in Filipino in a strongly worded homily at the Balanga Cathedral, Villegas said the President was accountable under the laws of God and that many questions surrounding last year's elections remained unanswered.

Politics of accommodation

It was the first time that Villegas spoke out against Ms Arroyo since the release of the "Hello, Garci" tapes in June that triggered the worst political crisis of her 4-year-old presidency.

Unknown to many, Villegas went to Malacañang in July and told the embattled President that it was time for her to go, at least two highly reliable sources had told the Inquirer in separate interviews.

In his homily, the prelate lamented what he called the "politics of accommodation" that continued under the Arroyo administration.

"Reforms in government following the norms of morality are being ignored by the President," he said. "Patronage politics continues for the few at the expense of the greater number."

Picking up the theme from the latest CBCP statement, Villegas said jobs and alleviation of poverty were more important in the countryside than the political squabbles involving the rich and the powerful in Manila.

"Hunger and intense poverty are driving the people away from politics, not because they are less patriotic," Villegas said. "Let us search for the truth in the last election but let us not pretend to be blind to the reality of hunger and poverty, he added."

Also yesterday, Vice President Noli de Castro said Filipinos should heed the bishops' declaration that the search for truth should continue "through peaceful, legal and constitutional means." With a report from Cynthia D. Balana ing a vacation to the Philippines, according to court documents.

The boys were identified through a joint investigation by US Immigration and Customs Enforcement agents and the Philippine National Police.

The ruling came a day after another San Diego man, who made a sex tape with a teenage girl while visiting the Philippines in 2002, was sentenced to three years in federal prison.

Bernard Lawrence Russell, 38, was ordered to pay $25,000 to "benefit Filipino victims of child exploitation," under a plea agreement in San Diego federal court.

A San Diego judge ordered Russell to stay away from children, give up his passport and have his telephone and computer use monitored.

Russell admitted in April that he traveled to the Philippines in 2002 with the intent to have sex with a child.

Two girls

Two girls, ages 13 and 14, said Russell paid them $30 and $20, respectively, to have sex, according to court documents.

Authorities also seized 32 images of child pornography during a search of Russell's home in 2003.

Datan's case was prosecuted under the Protect Act of 2003, which boosted penalties for such crimes and made it easier for federal prosecutors to bring charges in sex tourism cases.

"In the 10 years prior to the Protect Act, there were only two cases prosecuted," said Virginia Kice, spokesperson of the Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE).

"Since then, we've had 14 child sex tourism cases involving individuals, a number of them in Southern California."

Datan, a retired auditor, was arrested last Nov. 24 at Los Angeles International Airport by US Customs and Border Protection officers after returning from a two-month trip to the Philippines, his native country. A search of his luggage turned up hundreds of sexually explicit images of underage boys.

The day following Datan's arrest, ICE agents obtained a federal warrant to search his San Diego home where they seized Datan's collection of child pornography, including more than a dozen boxes of images of child erotica and child pornography.

"Those who trade in the exploitation of children should no longer expect distance or the anonymity of cyberspace to protect them," Michael Urzueta, special agent-in-charge of ICE investigations in San Diego, said in a news release last Nov. 19.

"ICE is using all of its law enforcement authorities to combat this heinous behavior both here and abroad," Urzueta said.

Dance troupe?

When ICE agents questioned Datan about the images, he said the boys were part of a Filipino dance troupe he knew through friends, according to the case affidavit. Datan said he often attended the boys' performances and stayed at a nearby hostel.

He added that the boys from the troupe would come to his hostel room following their shows to visit and shower, but he denied having any inappropriate sexual contact with them.

Datan pleaded guilty in March to engaging in illicit sexual conduct with minors and producing child pornography outside the United States.

He was sentenced in June to 17 years in federal prison and lifetime supervision.

Under an agreement with the US Attorney's Office and ICE, the international aid group World Vision will use the money Datan pays to provide two years of medical, psychological and occupational therapy for the teens, who were 14 and 15 when the crimes occurred.

"Every day children are sexually exploited by men from the United States in places like the Philippines, Cambodia and Costa Rica," said Joseph Mettimano, director of World Vision's child sex tourism prevention project.

"While the restitution cannot undo the damage that has been done, it will provide for much needed counseling and other services for some of the young boys assaulted," he said. Reports from AP and AFP
